

-----
Title: Blessing of War

Author:
-----

A ritual to grant blessing to a handful of warriors in order to grant them greater battle prowess.

The following must be performed by the ritualist who stands on a pentagram.

Up to five warriors may be blessed at a time. The warriors gather around the ritualist.

"Today, my brothers and sisters, today there will be a glorious battle in the name of Oblivion."

"Today the blood of the foolish mortals who dare to oppose us will flow to the ground."

"Our Lord wishes you, my brothers and sisters, to be his champions."

The ritualist now starts from the warrior who is in the most norther
point of the pentagram.
The ritualist faces the warrior and takes out a vial of black blood, which he pours on the armor of the warrior. Next, a blessing will be cast on the warrior. The ritualist proceeds to the next warrior, till all five are blessed.

After that is done, the ritualist goes back to the center of the pentagram, uttering the following.

"In the name of Entropy,
In the name of Oblivion,
In the name of our Lord"

The ritualist casts mass protection on himself, thus affecting all the warriors.

"Battle calls, my brothers and sisters, we must go forth and reap"

A gate appears and a member of the guild
brings a human fighter through it.

"Let the foolish mortal feel your wrath, strike him/her down and let the blood flow"

All the warriors are filled with battle rage and slay the human.

This ritual is to be performed before a battle, if needed.

Reagents for the ritual are not many, since the ritualist channels the power from Entropy.
Reagents needed are five vials of blood.